I need to have an online web where I could upload my personal portfolio. I also need to be able to edit and update my portfolio whenever I create a new project. I found this solution: Create a personal website This document will walk you through the process of creating a website, from creating your repository to uploading and caching your static files to production. However this seems more like a tutorial for a blog than a portfolio website. I am looking for something more similar to this website: Does anybody know if I can use GitHub as my online static-file repository and how to configure this? A: You can choose any static host for your site. I use Netlify and it has some clear instructions at If you're new to static hosting, the best place to start is with their overview. Their typical pricing is ~$12 a month, but they have tiers. Their pricing is probably similar to other services as well. The present invention relates to a system and method for preparing containers and, in particular, a system and method for preparing containers used for the storage and delivery of intravenous (IV) fluid. One of the challenges faced by the health care industry is the delivery of safe, sterile and clean IV solutions to patients. The human immune system naturally reacts to foreign matter, usually initiating a foreign body response, resulting in scarring of the blood vessels and vascular leakage. In response

Intense Report and Stress Reaction "Intense Report" is a paranormal investigation of the historic Elmira State Hospital in Elmira, New York. The investigation is based on interviews, evidence gathered by remote viewing and direct first hand testimony. Findings and conclusions will be presented on the power of the collective unconscious on issues dealing with stress and illness, and on methods to bring about a state of balance in the life of an individual. Description: All information, events, and happenings for this investigation are brought to you by the Northern Light Paranormal Research Society, www.northernlight.org. This investigative is not a for profit investigation and will be made available for free to anyone who will act as a research participant. Investigative Summary: There is a tragic and violent history to the Elmira State Hospital. At the turn of the 20th Century, the hospital was renowned for its treatment of mental illness, where both patients and staff were often institutionalized. The mental illness treatment was brutal and it had a profound impact on the lives and wellbeing of the patients and their caregivers. Soon after the progressive rehabilitation theories of the Nineteenth Century were abandoned, the intense and sometimes draconian treatment methods were adopted and used on a mass scale. In the 1930s and 1940s, electric shock treatments were started and the hospital became a haven for a number of unconventional and controversial psychosurgeries, including lobotomies and insulin overdoses. These practices were aided by various members of the medical staff in the hospital's use of hypnotism and the then unknown phenomena of electronic eavesdropping. It was through the use of remote viewing that today
